

Good Girls, Mean Girls.... dealing with girl issues in your school

Let us help you tackle the following issues/problems and create lasting solutions concerning girls today....

Girls will experience and learn to:

- ? Get real and honest about what's really going on amongst the girls in their class, i.e. cliques, exclusion, drama.
- ? Create a safe and respectful community of learners.
- ? Understand “drama” amongst friends and how to redirect it.
- ? Become aware of their part in friendship issues and how to do it different.
- ? Experience open discussions about inclusion/exclusion, gossip and backstabbing.
- ? Effective ways to express their feelings and desires, resolve conflicts peacefully, and handle teasing/bullying.

- ? Allow girls the space to handle past hurts and conflicts that are still preventing closeness and cooperation.
- ? Healthy ways to connect with each other
- ? Create projects that allow girls to transcend past problems and drama and to pull together for a higher cause.

Teachers will be taught skills on how to keep the girls new commitments and energy going....

- ? how to run effective class meetings
- ? turn over more and more responsibility to the class for maintaining a safe, respectful learning community
- ? guiding girls to hold each other accountable to their commitments to each other
- ? and much more!

Testimonials:

“Your non-judgmental acceptance and understanding promoted trust. You touched them and they listened. You showed them strategies to bridge their differences and they responded. Thank you so much for the beautiful day you spent with our Grade Five female students.”

~ Anne Reinholdt, teacher at Forsyth School

“The forethought and flexibility underlying the two day retreat proved quite successful. Dr. Jordan and his staff crafted a program wherein the children reflect on the ways that they treat each other and the ramifications those actions have on peers.

~ Matthew Virgil, Director at Rossman School
